

One single thing will never be significant enough to change my life and shape my personality. However, there are many moments in my life I will always remember because they mark up footprints on the road named freedom which will eventually lead me to the best version of myself. I want to illustrate and underline the importance of freedom not only in the form of speaking up, but also in many other aspects. In the chronology I made below, I highlighted ten moments that have impacted me deeply through today.

For example, dancing has played a vital role in my life. When I was little, I was such a chubby girl that nobody except my parents believed I could dance well among all the other slim girls. However, as soon as I started dancing, I became the best dancer in people's eyes. Believe it or not, I got this talent inside of me. My mom always tells me that I look like an entirely different person when I dance; I am joyful and confident. Dancing sets me free from all the laughing I received for my short and fat body. Dancing gives me a chance to prove myself that I can be the best and I will be the best. Just like the impact of dancing, all other nine moments carry different meanings for me.

Hey everyone!
Peng Qi is here!

1999.05.13

I was the only girl in my class who wants to be the representative of PE class, because usually this position only belongs to boys

2011

I have my family in America, and we have such a big diversity!

2015

I thought I'm good at math until I got nothing in my first math competition

April in 2017

Finally I graduated from high school

2018

2007.

Although I was chubby when I was little, I find confidence through dancing

2013

My baby brother was born! I am so thankful to have him in my life!!!

2016

I am the only Asian girl in the school Varsity Cheerleading Team

Summer of 2017

I got my first internship at a hotel in Beijing! It changed my mind about stepping up to the real society

Nov. 2018

This was the first time I travel without my parents. Cuba was amazing!!!